This seminar will examine theories and research on successful leadership. It is restricted to officers in the Honors Student Association and is taught by the Honors Activities Coordinator. Instructor permission required for registration. NOTE: The meeting time/date for this course is to be announced.

HONORS COLLOQUIA

HONORS 392-001  The Global and Local Problem of Human Trafficking
Class #15690  Wed 6:00-8:45pm  RFH 222  Jason Appelman / Andrew Finstuen
Human trafficking is a local and global problem. Worldwide revenue from human trafficking via the commercial sexual exploitation of children and adults, forced labor camps, and indentured servitude in both domestic and commercial contexts outweighs revenue from both the gun and drug trades combined. In this course, students will study this issue through texts, documentary film, and lecture material. These materials will inform conversations with Boise police personnel as we investigate the trafficking of lives from a topographical viewpoint, examining an interplay between our philosophical and practical perceptions of one of the most prolific tragedies of our time.

HONORS 392-002  Ideas, Words and Images
Class #14632  Tu 4:30-7:15pm  Liberal Arts 107  Samantha Harvey / Martin Corless-Smith
This course will track major developments in thinking, writing and art practice, starting with the theories surrounding the Romantic movement, and moving through Modernism to some Contemporary practitioners. We will study texts and images with equal rigor, and each student will be required to participate in presenting/leading discussion on two figures throughout the semester. Students will respond weekly to set readings which will help them develop ideas for a final paper
HONORS 392-003  Reporting
Class #12903  TuTh 9:00-10:15am  MEBB1110  Marcel Pacette
This course will focus on learning how to report and produce real news stories about real events and issues, potentially for a real audience of readers, listeners and viewers. Don’t be daunted if you haven’t had specific journalism training; that’s where the course part comes in. The internship part comes in because the goal here is to take ordinary people who want to know things and talk about things and to have them do journalism about those things so that other people will know, understand and want to talk about those same things. We’re looking for minds interested in inquiry, but for general and/or specific audiences instead of an academic one. Expect a mix of assigned and original work and a mix of shorter and longer pieces. The idea behind the course comes from a desire to have the university play a role in connecting people with what’s happening in their world through a public affairs perspective, but that ranges from the sage grouse to the grousings of a sage to issues that you’re learning about in your major to things you encounter on campus or in Idaho or the world.

HONORS 392-004  What Do We Eat? Why Do We Eat It?
Where Does It Come From? How Do We Cook It?
Class #15158  Mo 6:45pm-9:30pm  Location: TBD  Nicole Peyrafitte

HONORS 392-006  What Do We Eat? Why Do We Eat It?
Where Does It Come From? How Do We Cook It?
Class #16033  Fr 1:30pm-4:15pm  Location: TBD  Andrew Finstuen, Nicole Peyrafitte
While eating is the most common shared need of humankind, the great varieties of foods and cuisines serve not only our biological survival but also help to identify ourselves culturally. This course explores historical, economic, and ritual aspects of food, and looks at the role of cooking and eating in the context of the transformations of the world food system due to globalization, new technologies & migrations. Through lectures, demonstrations, films and hands-on preparation, students will learn to analyze their own food heritage while exploring local, national and international ingredients and their use. This very interactive — and tasty seminar — will also give you the basic skills to cook simple, healthy and affordable meals. You will learn knife skills, soup making, how to prepare party foods like crépes or simple hors d’oeuvres, and how to plan menus for yourself and/or the family. *NOTE-Students are responsible for their own transportation to class.

HONORS 392-005  Global Citizenship and Social Responsibility
Class #13038  Tues 4:30pm-7:15pm  Norco Rm 410-411  Anthony Songer/Karen Breitkreuz
Designed for all students. There is a required international service component for this course. All students are required to participate in the Spring Break trip to Corozal, Belize. Due to the uniqueness of this requirement, students are required to meet all required University policy requirements for study abroad. This is an International Service Learning opportunity. The trip to Belize will take place during spring break and you will need to pay your own way.

Cost: Approximately $2,750
SPECIAL TOPIC

HONORS 397-001
Special Session 1
Audience and Persuasion
Class #15160  4/8/16-4/10/16  Off-Site: McCall, Idaho
Andrew Finstuen /Annal Frenz /Chris Hyer

This one-credit course refines students’ writing and speaking skills while challenging them to carefully consider their pathway through college and their steps after graduation. The course will cover diverse forms of written and oral communication, including essays, proposals/grants, personal statements, and presentations. What each topic has in common is the need to persuade its intended audience in a polished yet accessible manner. For junior level Honors students. Includes a two day trip to McCall, Idaho.
Class Fee: $30.00

HONORS WORKSHOPS

HONORS 494-1070
Sociology of the Body
Class #15378  SaSu 2/20 & 2/21 9:00am-6:00pm  Riverfront Hall Rm 101
Carissa Wolf

The course examines the effects of contemporary society on the human body through an analysis of how media effects perceptions of the body and how health outcomes are closely linked one’s connection to social institutions and structures.

HONORS 494-1081
Being Basque and American
Class #15493  SaSu 1/30 &1/31 9:00am-5:00pm  ILC Rm 202
John Ysursa

This workshop explores the American immigrant experience generally, and the Basque experience specifically. Identity is sometimes given and sometimes chosen. Here Basques serve as a case study.
NOTE: Text available in the Boise State Bookstore.

HONORS 494-1089
Mathematical Modeling for HBE
Class #15398  SaSa 9:00am-5:00pm 2/20 & 2/27/16  Riverfront Hall 210
Kristin Snopkowski

This course introduces students to mathematical modeling concepts that are used in human behavioral ecology (HBE) such as optimization, dynamic modeling, agent-based modeling and game theory using MATLAB. Using these tools, students will develop models to gain greater insights into the behavior of both humans and non-human animals.
NOTE: Text available in the Boise State bookstore.

HONORS 494- 1086
The Way West Through Southern Idaho
Class #15739  SaSu 9:00am-5:00pm 3/12 & 3/13/16  Multi-purpose Clsrm 101
William Jerrems

This workshop will review the history of emigration associated with the Oregon Trail in southern Idaho, placing an emphasis upon its role leading to the environmental degradation along the trail corridor.
NOTE: "The Way West through Southern Idaho" workshop has a field trip (self-driving) component scheduled for Sunday, March 13, to Bonneville Point.
